Dear Sir:

I am writing to enclose a check for $144.00, for an unpaid balance which you have charged against my account.

This is for a gross of balls which I do not recall receiving. I wrote you recently and asked you please to assist me in getting the information from the Express Company as to who signed for the balls when they were delivered.

The gross of balls in question must be the ones you delivered March 16, and if I could find the name of the party who signed for their receipt it might clarify the matter for me. I

In the meantime, I want to order another gross of balls and would like to have them delivered as soon as possible. I am also awaiting delivery of a set of white uniforms. I had expected to receive them before now. I will appreciate your hurrying the order for me, if possible.

I am sorry this confusion has arisen about this gross of balls. It may be due to carelessness on the part of my office but I know we will get it straightened out. I will appreciate receipt of the gross of balls I am ordering now as soon as possible.

Very truly yours,

EM:vh
